OUTLOOK AND STRATEGY

The month of April began well, recording new highs above the 8,000 index level. However, the market swiftly moved back as heavy fund outflows rotated out of the ASEAN and into North Asia, capping the month at 7,715 (-2.8% MOM).

23 out of the 30 index names ended the month in red. The banking sector took the hardest hit as flows streamed out, and investors reacting in anticipation of the increase in bond yields. Conglomerates fell as funds retreated from macro proxies. With valuations already looking stretched, the consumer space also saw substantial declines during the month.

Another cause of the major share price movements for this month was the regulatory tangle in which the water utilities are involved. Manila Water's arbitration panel decided an 11% cut on its basic water tariff as a result of the panel's decision to disallow corporate income tax recovery. The decision straightforwardly disagrees with the ruling for a similar dispute involving Maynilad, in which Maynilad was awarded a 10% increase in tariff.
