OUTLOOK AND STRATEGY

Yields continue to decline. It declined to 3.42% or 9 bps for 1-year tenor, 4.06% or 19bps for 5-year tenor, and 4.47% or 27 bps for 10-year tenor. The drop in yields is attributable to benign inflation at 1.3% in November. Furthermore, it is due to market expectation on BSP governor eyeing around 50 bps rates in 2020.

Remittances hit 10-month high in October. It increased by 7.7% or equivalent to $2.97 billion and may surpassed the Dec 2018 level by 2019 yearend. The 2019 budget was 99% released according to DBM. The exhaustion of 2019 budget will have trickle-down effect to the real economy. It will tend to have robust GDP.

Rates will likely to remain low due to benign inflation and further BSP expansionary policy.
